

Applewood

Community Profile

History

The earliest settlements in the Applewood District occurred in the villages of Dixie and Burnhamthorpe which were established during the mid 1800s. The village of Dixie, centred at Dundas Street and Cawthra Road, was built in the early 1800s. The village of Burnhamthorpe was centred around the area of Burnhamthorpe Road and Dixie Road.

These villages developed as local service centres for the immediate rural areas, which were characterized by farms and orchards. By the late 1800s, Dixie had an established market gardening centre.

During the first half of the twentieth century, the villages of Dixie and Burnhamthorpe began to decline as a result of improved access to larger centres such as Port Credit and Cooksville.

The Applewood District area remained predominantly rural to the mid 1950s when G.S. Shipp & Sons Ltd. began to develop the Applewood Heights subdivision on the former T.L. Kennedy homestead at the corner of Dundas Street and Tomken Road. Around the same time, the Dixie Industrial Area south of Dundas Street was being promoted for industrial development.

Today Applewood is an established residential community, providing a variety of housing types including single and semi-detached dwellings, townhouses, apartments and mobile homes.
